The Floortime Approach: Meeting Individual Needs in Early Childhood Groups

Discover how the Floortime approach, a technique of interacting one-on-one with a child, can help you address and support children's individual needs. Learn how Floortime can help you better understand the developmental challenges that some children face and help move them to higher levels of social interaction and play. See how you can successfully integrate Floortime into the day to benefit each child in your program.

Monday
January 11, 2010
